Definitions

All definitions are to be expressed in the language of the Data Protection Act 2018 and the General Data Protection Regulation 2018. Items below are defined in a listed order, for further information on established definitions please don't hesitate to contact us at info@ukexpertsonline.co.uk

Introduction

The new EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) came into force on 25 May 2018 (including in the UK regardless of its decision to leave the EU) and has impacted every organisation, which holds or processes personal data. It introduced new responsibilities, including the need to demonstrate compliance, more stringent enforcement and substantially increased penalties than the current Data Protection Act (DPA), which it will supersede.

UK Experts Online is committed to high standards of information security, privacy and transparency. We place a high priority on protecting and managing data in accordance with accepted standards including ISO 27001 and PCI-DSS. The company complied with applicable GDPR regulations when they took effect in 2018, including as a data processor, while also working closely with our customers and partners to meet contractual obligations for our procedures, products and services. Our team of experienced digital specialists will also help to support customers in meeting their obligations through the provision of expert services and value-adding solutions.

How we protect your Personal Data

Protecting your information is one of our top priorities, we use a world leading hosting service, which hold all of your data, and host our web services in London. Any individual with access to your data goes through a rigorous reference and disbaring services check, and no hard copies of Personal Data are created at any point. All data transfer is secured using modern encryption technologies.

UK Experts Online is exclusively a Data Controller with respect to all Personal Data entered into our websites directly. In the event that this information is used by a consumer to form a contract or acquire a service from a party through our services it is often the case that UK Online Experts will be a Data Controller and maintain a Joint-Controller relationship with this third party, with each entity controlling the Personal Data collected, and UK Experts Online acting as a Data Processor with respect to the copy provided to the third party. This information is only copied and provided to such a third party in order for a consumer to form contract for services with the third party, and only when explicit consent to do so has been provided by the consumer.

Frequently a consumer may be forwarded to an application hosted directly by the party operating the service applied for, in these instances UK Experts Online is to be a Data Processor, and any data provided to UK Experts Online from this party will only be used for the purposes explicitly stated at the time of application for their service.
